Biography Of The Late Daasebre Asare Baah III Omanhene Of Worawora, Traditional Area from 1977 - 2015

Daasebre Asare Baah III, known in private life as Ephraim Yaw Nyamekye Baah was born on the 8th of July 1935 at Worawora in the Volta Region.

He was the fifth among six siblings born to Nana Yaw Baah of Oyoko Bokukuma family in Worawora and Madam Akosua Korkor of Atwode in Nkwanta District of the Volta Region.

Young Ephraim Yaw Nyamekye Baah started his basic education at the Worawora Primary School in 1943 and went through to the then Worawora Presbyterian Middle Boarding School, then known as SALEM, completing his basic education in 1953.

After his middle school education, he won a Government scholarship to pursue secondary education at the Presbyterian Boys Secondary School (PRESEC), then located at Krobo Odumasi in the Eastern Region. He was a very brilliant student so it was not a surprise when he passed the Cambridge Ordinary Level School Certificate with Grade 1 in 1959.

Young Ephraim again won a government bursary to further his sixth form education at Mfanstipim School from 1960 to 1962 where again he passed with very good grades.

In 1963, he was admitted to the Faculty of Law at the University of Ghana, Legon to study Law. He successfully passed out as a Lawyer in 1967.

After the university education, he taught briefly at the St. Thomas Aquinas Secondary School in Accra as an English Tutor before deciding to go into private practice as a lawyer.

He then joined the Ameyi Chambers in 1969. It was at the Ameyi Chambers that he met his senior colleague and bosom friend Lawyer Osei Nyame of Kadjebi Akan in the Volta Region. (Lawyer Osei Nyame is now the Adontenhene of Kadjebi Traditional Area).

The late Professor A. C. Kumah who had taught Lawyer Nyamekye Baah at the Worawora Middle Boarding School then headed the Ameyi Chambers.

Lawyer Nyamekye Baah and his bosom friend and kinsman Lawyer Osei Nyame decided to leave the Ameyi Chambers to establish their own chambers. This decision saw the birth of Ringway Chambers in 1971 at Adabraka in Accra where the two Lawyers of repute were together as Legal Practitioners until Daasebre's sudden demise in August 2015.

Lawyer Ephraim Yaw Nyamekye Baah was enstooled as the Omanhene of Worawora Traditional Area in 1977 under the stool name of Nana Asare Baah III, after the death of Nana Saforo Baah II.

After his enstoolment, Nana Asare Baah III, later becoming Daasebre, successfully combined the legal practice and his traditional duties as Omanhene.

As a lawyer, Daasebre Asare Baah, also joined the enviable League of Lawyers who are known as Friends of the Court. These Friends of the Court are lawyers who volunteer to defend the poor and helpless in the society who appear before the courts without legal representation, free of charge. Daasebre always exhibited his brilliance as a lawyer at the courts. He won a lot of landmark cases at the courts to the admiration of both his clients and colleagues. It is on record that he was one of the few lawyers who in the heat of the 1979 Revolution attended the Military Tribunals to defend soldiers. He was quite popular among his friends of the legal fraternity and was always ready to offer professional advice to the junior colleagues.

As a traditional ruler, Daasebre took his rightful place as a member of the Volta Regional House of Chiefs and took active part in the deliberations of the Regional House. After swearing the Oath of Allegiance to Otumfuo Osei Tutu II, Daasebre also became a member of Asanteman and had to travel from Worawora to Manhyia in Kumasi to attend meetings. During his almost 38 years of reign, one of the longest in the history of the Worawora State, a lot of developments took place in the state with the active collaboration of the Worawora Development Association, the chiefs of the various divisions and the entire youth of the state.

The following are some of the landmark developments:

1. Electricity was connected to the state in 1995.
2. The Ghana Police District Headquarters was established
3. Additional buildings of the Worawora Secondary School were constructed.
4. The Asubonten Rural Bank was established.
5. The Government finally took over the administration of the Worawora Government Hospital.
6. The Worawora Rice Mills Ltd was established to take care of the defunct Oti Rice Mills Ltd.
7. The establishment of the annual Akwantutenten Festival of the people of Worawora.

The most important legacy of Daasebre was the official re-connection with our ancestral roots in Asante, culminating in the Swearing of the Oath of Allegiance to Otumfuo Osei Tutu II at the Manhyia Palace on 26th February 2001.

Following from this historic act, Otumfuo Osei Tutu II accepted the invitation of Daasebre to attend the Akwantutenten Festival in September 2001.

On the 29th of September 2001, Otumfuo Osei Tutu II made history as the first Asantehene to cross the River Volta to attend the Akwantutenten festival of the people of Worawora with Daasebre as his host.

As Odomankoma the Supreme Creator has decreed, there is a time to be born and a time to die. And so on the fateful day of 11th August 2015, the State of Worawora was shocked to hear the sudden home call of Daasebre Asare Baah III.

Daasebre is survived by his wife, Rose Ama Baah, eight children, eight grandchildren and ten great grandchildren.

TRIBUTE BY WIFE (ROSE ASARE BAAH)

Ecclesiastes 3:1: "To everything is a season and time to every purpose under the heaven"

"For him who has faith, death, so far as it is his own death ceases to possess any quality of terror." H.G Wells

Indeed it is with a great sorrow that I pay homage for my dear beloved husband Nana as I affectionately called him.

I met Nana in the year 1977, just after his enstoolment as a chief. He was an Accra based lawyer, while I was still in the Secondary School at Worawora. When Nana saw me he sent someone straight away to my mother because my father had passed away and asked for my hand in marriage. Initially that plan of his did not go down well with me because I found it rather strange and difficult since he was far older than me. I thought he was going to take me out of school but Nana gave his word that he was going to polish me rather than spoil my life. He said, "Don't worry I will make sure you get to any level you want to in education".

Nana came into my life as a blessing, immediately, he changed my school from Worawora Secondary School to St. Johns Grammar School in Accra. Life became very easy and enjoyable because he provided me with all I needed and wanted till I completed form 5(five). As if that was not enough he encouraged me to go to training college and in the year 1983, I graduated as a professional teacher.

Finally Nana performed the necessary customary rites in the year 1984 and both of us lived happily together as a husband and a wife. We had known each other for a long time so I knew his likes and dislikes. Therefore I could cope with the marriage regardless of the age difference.

The first thing I did to show my gratitude to show my gratitude to this great man who came into my life was to bring together all the children he had before we got married under one roof. This made me a mother before I had our first born in the year 1985, later we had three more children in addition.

Nana was a God fearing person who prayed with us always. He was also very hard working and loved his job. He was a wonderful husband and father. He was always there for the family, he provided food in abundance, gave his children and those he could help very good education. What he hated the most was to see any member of the family ill, he therefore made sure we were all in good health always. Above all he also loved helping the needy and the poor. Living with him was to me a great joy. Our birthdays never passed without a party.

My husband Nana was my great teacher who taught me certain good values in life. For instance he taught me not to tell lies and how to work very hard to make ends meet. He also taught me not to do things without planning ahead. Nana's doors were always open to all men and women to all walks of life. Nana my problem solver, my adviser, my comforter on earth already I am missing you. Who is going to entertain Kofi, Kojo and Adwoa. Oh! so Nana, have you stopped thinking of matters concerning our children and the people of Worawora? It is very difficult to imagine life without my dearest husband. It has always been comforting knowing that even when we were not together under the same roof; there was the assurance that you were always there to support the children and I.

Nana in times like this this, words cannot sufficiently express how one can really feel. May God our Lord have mercy you and welcome you peacefully into His heart where there will be no pain, sorrow and death.

Daasebre, rest in perfect peace till we meet again.

Fare thee well.

Damirifa Due, Due, Due.

TRIBUTE BY CHILDREN (EVA BAAH)

How do I start to let you go after knowing you for so many years? Nana of all your children I have known you the longest. From the time when you were then becoming established as a young lawyer you brought me to live with you in Accra so that you could guarantee a good education for me. You passed down you desire for your children to have the best in life especially in terms of education to me when you advised to do the same me concerning my own children later in life. If asked to describe your character I would say that you were very kind but firm. As a father and leader of Worawora that was exactly how your character had to be. It is therefore no surprise that your time as Omanhene of Worawora was very successful. You used your wisdom to get a lot in place for us your children and your subjects. You used your peaceful nature to settle many disputes. You made our lives better.

I was aware of how age had taken its toll on you. About the state of your health but it was still a shock to me to hear of your passing on that fateful day. In fact I meant to see you since I was also in Accra for a short while but the almighty God himself had other plans. I am consoled in the fact that you lived well. You didn't leave your children in a bad position. We will truly miss you. You were a light for us to look up to. Now you are with our Father in Heaven. Till we meet again Dada.

TRIBUTE BY BELINDA BAAH

My memory of my father starts from infancy. I could remember he and I and his two 'wofaasefoo' were the only people in the house. I would ask him to join me in saying the Lord's Prayer before he put me to bed. We would both kneel on the bed and pray and when I dozed off he would lay me in bed. In the night when I woke up and was afraid, I would rush to his room and he would ask me to come sleep by him. I was so fond of my dad I would wait for him every day when he came home and report anyone who had spoken rudely to or beaten me to him.

I remember when he would buy gifts almost every week. My fond memories were the cute mugs he got us from one made of bamboo to my mug that had a picture of a goose. Iced cream was always in the fridge especially when it was Christmas. Christmas those days was so exciting! He would make sure we got our two dresses each, our shoes, watches and the spectacles. I would feel so happy I wouldn't be able to sleep and since our Christmas clothes were kept in this room in the lower wardrobe. I would sneak there to look at my stuff and when he caught me, he would penalize me and call me "master of ceremonies". At the time they teased me so much that I would cry. Perhaps, he knew deep down I was a master of ceremonies.

As I grew older, he was quite strict on us. We did not understand it but Dada shaped us to be well educated. He would buy books and dictionaries for us and we would have to read our books and summarize it for him. When school was on vacation, he would take my sister and I to the Ghana Library Board and boy didn't we love reading books! From primary right to secondary school, every teacher or student knew my father the lawyer. If a teacher punished me all my friends would ask me to tell my father to come and talk to the teacher. Daddy will always call me "Belinda Baah" when I was in his good books or when his friends came to visit and he was introducing us to them.

Anytime he mentioned or shouted “Akua Adwira” I knew it was trouble. We had our own love-hate relationship when I grew up into a young adult. As I grew up and became a woman I realized he was just protecting me and training me to be a responsible adult.

Dada would never understand why I wouldn’t go to church on Sunday. It was non-negotiable, I had to go. You loved God so much. I once passed by your room on my way to the kitchen and I saw you praying. I was so touched I told God to answer your prayers that I knew included your children. I am not surprised now as I cast my mind back and remember how you would wake us up at dawn most mornings for prayers.

We would drag our feet and complain we were sleepy. You would pray for each one of us and basically “report us to God”.

You were the kindest soul to ever walk on this earth. My dad would always lend a helping hand to all who solicited for his help. Growing up, he would give money to every friend of mine who came to visit. The shoe-shine boys will always come over to our house when it was Christmas and we will serve them with food and you will give them money.

Anyone who knew you will remember how you loved your tea. You would drink tea all day like an Englishman. Now wonder we all drink tea so much. You loved to dance Dada, you will dance so much when you were stronger and sing your highlife songs like “akoko ba ee ee” while we imitated and laughed at you.

I could write a whole book about you but I have a library in my heart to cherish all the memories I have of you.

The silence is deafening, the emptiness overwhelming. I feel like I am the one who has been hit the hardest because I perhaps I was amongst the very first of us children to meet you.

Even though you were the Omanhene of Worawora, you were always “Dada” to me. You were my first hero and the cat with the nine lives. You defied all odds.

I think of you all the time and I know you are in heaven where you truly belong. We never told each other how much we loved each other.

I love you so much Dada and I am happy God chose you as my earthly father.

*Da yie Dada.
Till we meet again.
Akua Adwira*

TRIBUTE BY ROSEMARY BAAH TOSU

*Aseda ye de mo Onyame, Aseda ye de mo Nyame 2x
Ye de ma Onyame, Ye de ma Onyame....*

Indeed all praise and thanks go to the Almighty God who gave us this man, Daasebre Asare Baah III, whom we call dada as a father.

These are a few thoughts on my father.

Mahatma Gandhi said that 'the greatness of humanity is not in being human, but in being humane'.

For me and many others who came into contact with him, he was a humane person. My father had a tenderness, compassion and sympathy for those who were suffering or deprived. It was not uncommon for him to bring different family members to live with us in order to support them; he never closed his door on anyone. In the streets, he was the friend of beggars, hawkers, shoeshine boys alike and he never hesitated to help them in whatever form he could. My father was a great man. The great French philosopher, Charles de Montesquieu said that 'to be truly great, one has to stand with people, not above them'. My father was never oppressive, he stood with people, he listened to their plights, he overlooked their mistakes and sought to help them even in clear situations where he could easily have rejected them.

My father was a man of integrity. I always say that my father never paid any bribe for us to go to school, to get employment or to benefit in any way that we had not worked for. As children, my siblings and I always complained bitterly that our father never used his position to get us any favours. Unknowing to us he was building us up to be persons of integrity in our society. My father loved education and he always told us plainly that education was all he was going to give us. He was right; it is only education that makes persons from different backgrounds equal. I remember clearly, numerous vacations we spent at home wishing we would be working to make money like some of our friends. Dada would not have any of it, he would ask 'Have you finished reading your books you brought from school?' and that would be the end of the matter.

My father was an avid reader; there was not a single moment he spent without reading. I remember him saying to me when I worked with him at Ringway Chambers,

Rose take these books and place them in my car, I intend to read them this weekend ‘, every single Friday. He always crossed swords with me every time I borrowed his books and didn’t return them on time. He would constantly demand where his books are.

We thank God that we have imbibed this character.

My father was a man of faith. He believed in God and always looked to Him for help and protection. When he was not saddled with any traditional duties, he made it a point to attend church, especially when we were much younger. In our older years, he would request that we go to church and facilitated this for us by providing transportation and money for offertory. Even if my father did not go to church you would catch him in his room watching any preacher from Pastor Chris Oyakhilome, Prophet TB Joshua to Pastor Andrews Ewool of the SDA Church.

I genuinely believe he is resting in the Lord’s bosom right now.

My father was a determined man and strong in spirit. He never gave up, even after suffering a stroke earlier in life, he bounced back to continue his practice much to the admiration of many. He never gave up practicing his beloved profession till the very last day. We always worried about him as he postponed his retirement from practice every year. He used to say, when we asked him to rest that ‘There is more rest after death’. Dada sleep well, you have done your part.

My father was a good provider. He gave his all. Even when it killed him, he gave. Even when his shoes were torn, he never withheld, he gave. As children, he made sure we got quality education; he never mortgaged our education for the pleasures of life. We never had to sell anything to survive. We were never sacked home for school fees, we were never hungry, our house was always overflowing with food. What more can a child ask for, Dada mo.

My father had a spirit of discernment and knowledge. He knew everyone like the back of his hand. He had a good judgment about people. We used to rebel when he kept on telling us what he thought we should do, on hindsight, after his passing we realise he was right in the many things he insisted upon.

But, he was misunderstood, by even us his children. Ralph Waldo Emerson asks

‘Is it so bad, then to be misunderstood? Pythagoras was misunderstood and Socrates, and Jesus, and Luther, and Copernicus and Galileo and Newton, and every wise spirit that ever took flesh. To be great is to be misunderstood’

Therein lies the greatness of my father.

Aahhh and he was funny too. When he was in a good mood, he would do his akokoba dance. He had funny names for so many people like Gorbachov, Joshua Nkomo etc. I remember Akua, was always unhappy when you called her a Master of Ceremonies, but I suspect she would admit now that she was indeed a master of ceremonies.

Awo and Fafali miss you. Isaac wishes you could have leaved longer to see his exploits, you would have been proud of him. I never got to bring Fafali to you for you to bless as you requested when I told you it would soon be her birthday. Little did I know you would not live past a few days. Yayra never met you, but rest assured she would hear great stories of her granddad, the Woraworahene.

Indeed we now see the truth, when you used to tell us ‘ Ohene ba ne dia ne papa ti ase’ translated as a prince or princess is the one whose father is alive. I miss you dearly; we thank God we got to spend some good time with you. Be rest assured we will continue with the values you taught us and keep your flame burning.

Dada damirifa due, Due ne Amanehunu.

TRIBUTE BY KINGSLEY BAAH

As a child growing up, daddy gave his everything to us his children. He gave his time, money and also his patience was unmatched.

During 90's when growing up, I realized what a good father we had. I can recount that every Christmas in the Baah family home, there was joy and excitement because "dada" as we used to call him had agreed to give all of us money for Christmas shopping. There was glee on our faces when each one of us was called to be given his or her money. He would also warn us to spend wisely and made sure we used the money to buy clothes for the occasion. We were the envy of every child. My schoolmates from primary and junior high school still remember our "savior". He was our savior because of the attitude of some our teachers who meted out sometimes unreasonable punishment of some of the students.

He would come to the school to inquire why a teacher punished a student by allowing the student to stand beside a live wire whilst it was raining. I remember vividly how my elder sister Akua, was asked to stand close to an electric pole as her punishment. He was at the school demanding the removal of the said teacher. I still recall those secret glances I made at him whenever he was about to eat. He would say a prayer before eating his food. I also remember he would wake us up at dawn for morning devotion. We would reluctantly wake up one by one yawning and complaining bitterly because dada had called us for morning devotion.

He was not only concerned about our welfare but also about our Christian lives. He loved his family and always wanted to entertain us.

He would take us to Next Door beach Resort to have fun. Most of our friends envied us and we came and told our friends stories of the fun we had at the beach. I still remember the iced cream bought in large quantities and put in the family fridge and how he made sure that we had a sound upbringing.

To me, father was the kindest and most generous person I ever met and our neighbors would testify to this fact. Everyone was invited for food or otherwise and he encouraged every young person to take his or her education seriously. He never discriminated but made sure he came across was treated fairly. Whenever we had work related issues, he gave good counsel and advised us on the steps to redress such issues.

He loved sports, spent time playing golf at the Achimota Golf Course. He also enjoyed boxing bouts and would make funny gestures when the boxing game became intense or if one of the boxers was being beaten severely. His favorite football club was Arsenal fc and he would sometimes discuss why the club for failing to win the league is keeping the coach. He always asked my opinion on a national issue or court case and would even give me an insight on how certain judges came by their verdicts in political cases.

He was a loving dad and coined pet names for all his children. He had a listening ear and enjoyed good food, lived life to the fullest and had a great fashion sense. He loved animals and always wanted to know if we had given our pet dog food to eat.

Ever since Nana's passing, I find myself thinking about him and the gift of love he brought to all knew him. Nana, I promise to live a humble life as you lived and continue your beautiful legacy

Daasebre Nana Asare, rest peacefully until we meet again in eternity

TRIBUTE BY EDWARD BAAH

When he was alive, my father was one of my favorite conversation topics. All my friends knew about him although most of them had not even met him. He was an extraordinary man. That means I had many interesting stories to tell about him. These stories were interesting only because we did not really understand this outstanding man. It is only now after his demise that I am fully appreciating this gift that God gave our family and the whole Worawora community for many decades.

The man Daasebre Asare Baah III that I knew was a very firm man. In the management of our family affairs, he was not willing to compromise on the right way of doing things that he knew about. All my siblings can attest to the fact that he had a hand in all aspects of our lives. From our haircut as children and young adults to the schools we attended, the signature of this great man was visible in our lives as we grew up and even today. Of course with the little mind of a growing child, I was of the view that my father was a bit too domineering in our lives. Until experience later in life thought me that he made the perfect decisions on many things in our lives, even when we did not understand why he made those decisions. I recall when it was time for me to go on to secondary school, my father insisted I go to a school, which was not the one I preferred the most. It was upsetting for an adolescent to be denied the chance to go to your favorite school for no reason at all except because your father wanted to.

However after passing through that institution, I come full circle to appreciate the wisdom of his choice. Also I appreciated how much courage it must have taken him to deny me something that I wanted so badly seeing that he was very fond of me. To me he was a very good father. As I have already stated, my father's firm stance was evident in all aspects of our lives especially in our education. As my siblings will testify, He did not compromise on our education. His famous words to us were that our education was the only true thing he could give to us on earth.

He put his mouth where his money was an ensured that we got the best that the system had to offer.

He was not just passively interested in our academic development. As young children, he would occasionally buy books for us to read and ensure that we have read by asking us questions about it. He was instrumental in my course of study in the university, having the foresight to tell the world of computing would be the next big thing in the world and encouraging me to get on board. For that I have to say thank you to my father.

When I became an independent young man, I could not have imagined how much I would still need my father's advice. At a point it looked to me that my welfare was even more of his concern after I had left the house than when I lived with him. We spoke on the phone on a daily basis talking about everything from politics, sports to business. He vetted all my ideas, and put me in touch with the right people when he could not guide me on an issue. I believe this is where the loss in my life would be felt.

I would miss him so much because though we lived apart he was a part of my own family as well. Visiting him on the weekends and on holidays was the highlight of the day for my wife and I. I would miss drinking tea with him while catching up on all the affairs of Worawora and Arsenal and our favorite political party. I remember with fondness the days I tried to convince him to drop his preference on one brand or the other. There were some major victories such as the time when I successfully convinced him to drop Maxam toothpaste in favour of more modern ones. I would also miss our travels together, whether to Worawora or to Kumasi for royal duties or to one of his outside Accra court trips. I would always return from the being on the road with more enlightened because he taught me so much about Ghana on the road.

Dada, you are forgiven for choosing to bring me sorrow by passing away on the occasion of my birthday. I guess it was just another way of ensuring that I learn some more lessons in life. I know God's works are great and not easily understood so I will trust in his wisdom. I know we shall certainly meet again.

*Till then, fare thee well.
Damirifa due*

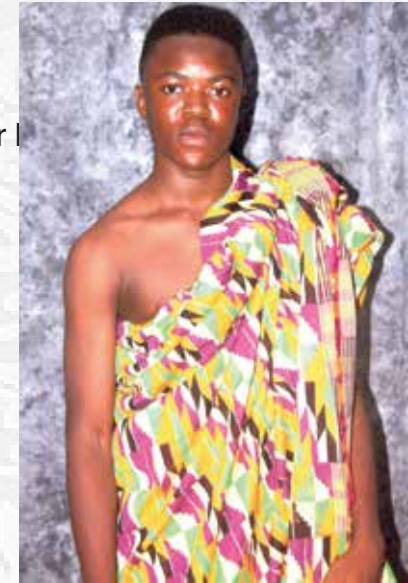

TRIBUTE BY EPHRAIM BAAH

Daa, you were really fond of my little siblings and I because we were the last of your children. You always used to make us feel special. We felt protected in the knowledge that you were there for us. Our needs were always provided on time. You gave us the encouragement and motivation to study at school. We always tried to do our best because we knew that it meant the world to you.

I remember the tea drinking moments, the times you bought our favorite fried rice for us and even your general kindness that led to you give us money without any occasion. You made sure no Christmas was dry for us.

Living on earth in your absence will be very difficult. I pray that God grants my little siblings and I the ability to go through school and make you proud. I am proud to have been named after you. Till we meet again.

We try to understand the phenomenon called TIME, we all seem to need more of it but TIME seems to elude us all. Father dear Father a day rarely goes by without my having flashbacks; your daily calls, the fried rice and the credit you send to us. And then in a twinkle of an eye, poof you were gone!

Please can someone explain what happened? Last year, you were with us, today you are not. You've gone on what I like to call an adventure but my dear father it still hurts pretty badly. The pain is still fresh. All this while I've been trying to understand DEATH and TIME, so far I've come to learn that it depends on what God the Almighty has destined our earthly time to be. We could stick around for as little as a second or if lucky for as long as our folks.

It all goes to show that we need to value our time here better Because when the time comes to start that adventure, there is no turning back.

My dear father despite the pain that lingers in the core of my being, I've got to try and let go. Father I wish you well. As the tears rolls down and as I seek PEACE to stop PAIN, I pray for God to grant you peace as well.

Rest well my father, rest well

Oh! A big tree has fallen (Dada)

Dear father, I am in great pain because you have departed from me. It is a blow, a very big one strong enough to destroy a building to miss your presence. It took me by surprise when I heard you had passed. Your sudden death has left me nothing but heartbreak and I wish I could bring you back to life.

This misfortune that took place on the 11th August 2015, on that faithful Tuesday has left a vacuum in my heart. Dada I have really miss you and the Sunday fried rice you always used to buy for me, not forgetting the MTN credit that was assured from time to time.

Thank you very much for your pieces of advice, your motivation and always keeping us safe. You were a man of peace, greatness and I will miss you every second because you are the best father in the world. I am very proud of you and I say Ayikoo to all you achievement in your lifetime. It is my prayer that our father in heaven will give you eternal rest and dwell in the house of God.

May your soul rest in perfect peace! Amen

TRIBUTE BY ALICE AFARI

It was a big blow and a shock when I heard your sudden death. You were quite well and I never dreamt that your death was so near. You left without saying a word to me that you would be going somewhere. A week before your death, I was with you discussing about the children and we were laughing together on some words that you said.

Really, Nana the good Lord has ushered you peacefully to the bosom of Abraham. It pleased the almighty God to call you home without a parting word to your children and myself. Though painful, I thank the good Lord for the peaceful transition. Although we had our ups and downs, but you were always there for us.

Nana was considerable generous and a wonderful father to his children. You played a role as a father in the upbringing of your children most especially in their education and it is a great joy to see hem all being responsible adults. Nana, as you leave us today, I am consoled that you are in a better place and I take solace in God's guidance and protection. May the peace of God remain with you and lift you up where you belong.

Farewell Nana till we meet again.

TRIBUTE BY COMFORT AGYARE

Isaiah 25:4-5 King James Version

'For you have been a stronghold to the poor, a stronghold to the needy in his distress, a shelter from the storm and a shade from the heat.

like a heat in a dry place. You subdue the noise of the foreigners as heat by the shade of a cloud so the song of the ruthless is put down.'*

This verse represents your life on earth Nana, you were indeed a stronghold for the poor and needy in their time of distress. You were always ready to help people in their times of need. The Lord gave you to us and the Lord has taken you to be in his bosom, may the name of the Lord be praised. Damirifa due, Nana. Nana may your gentle soul rest in perfect peace. You loved the Lord and always sought his face.

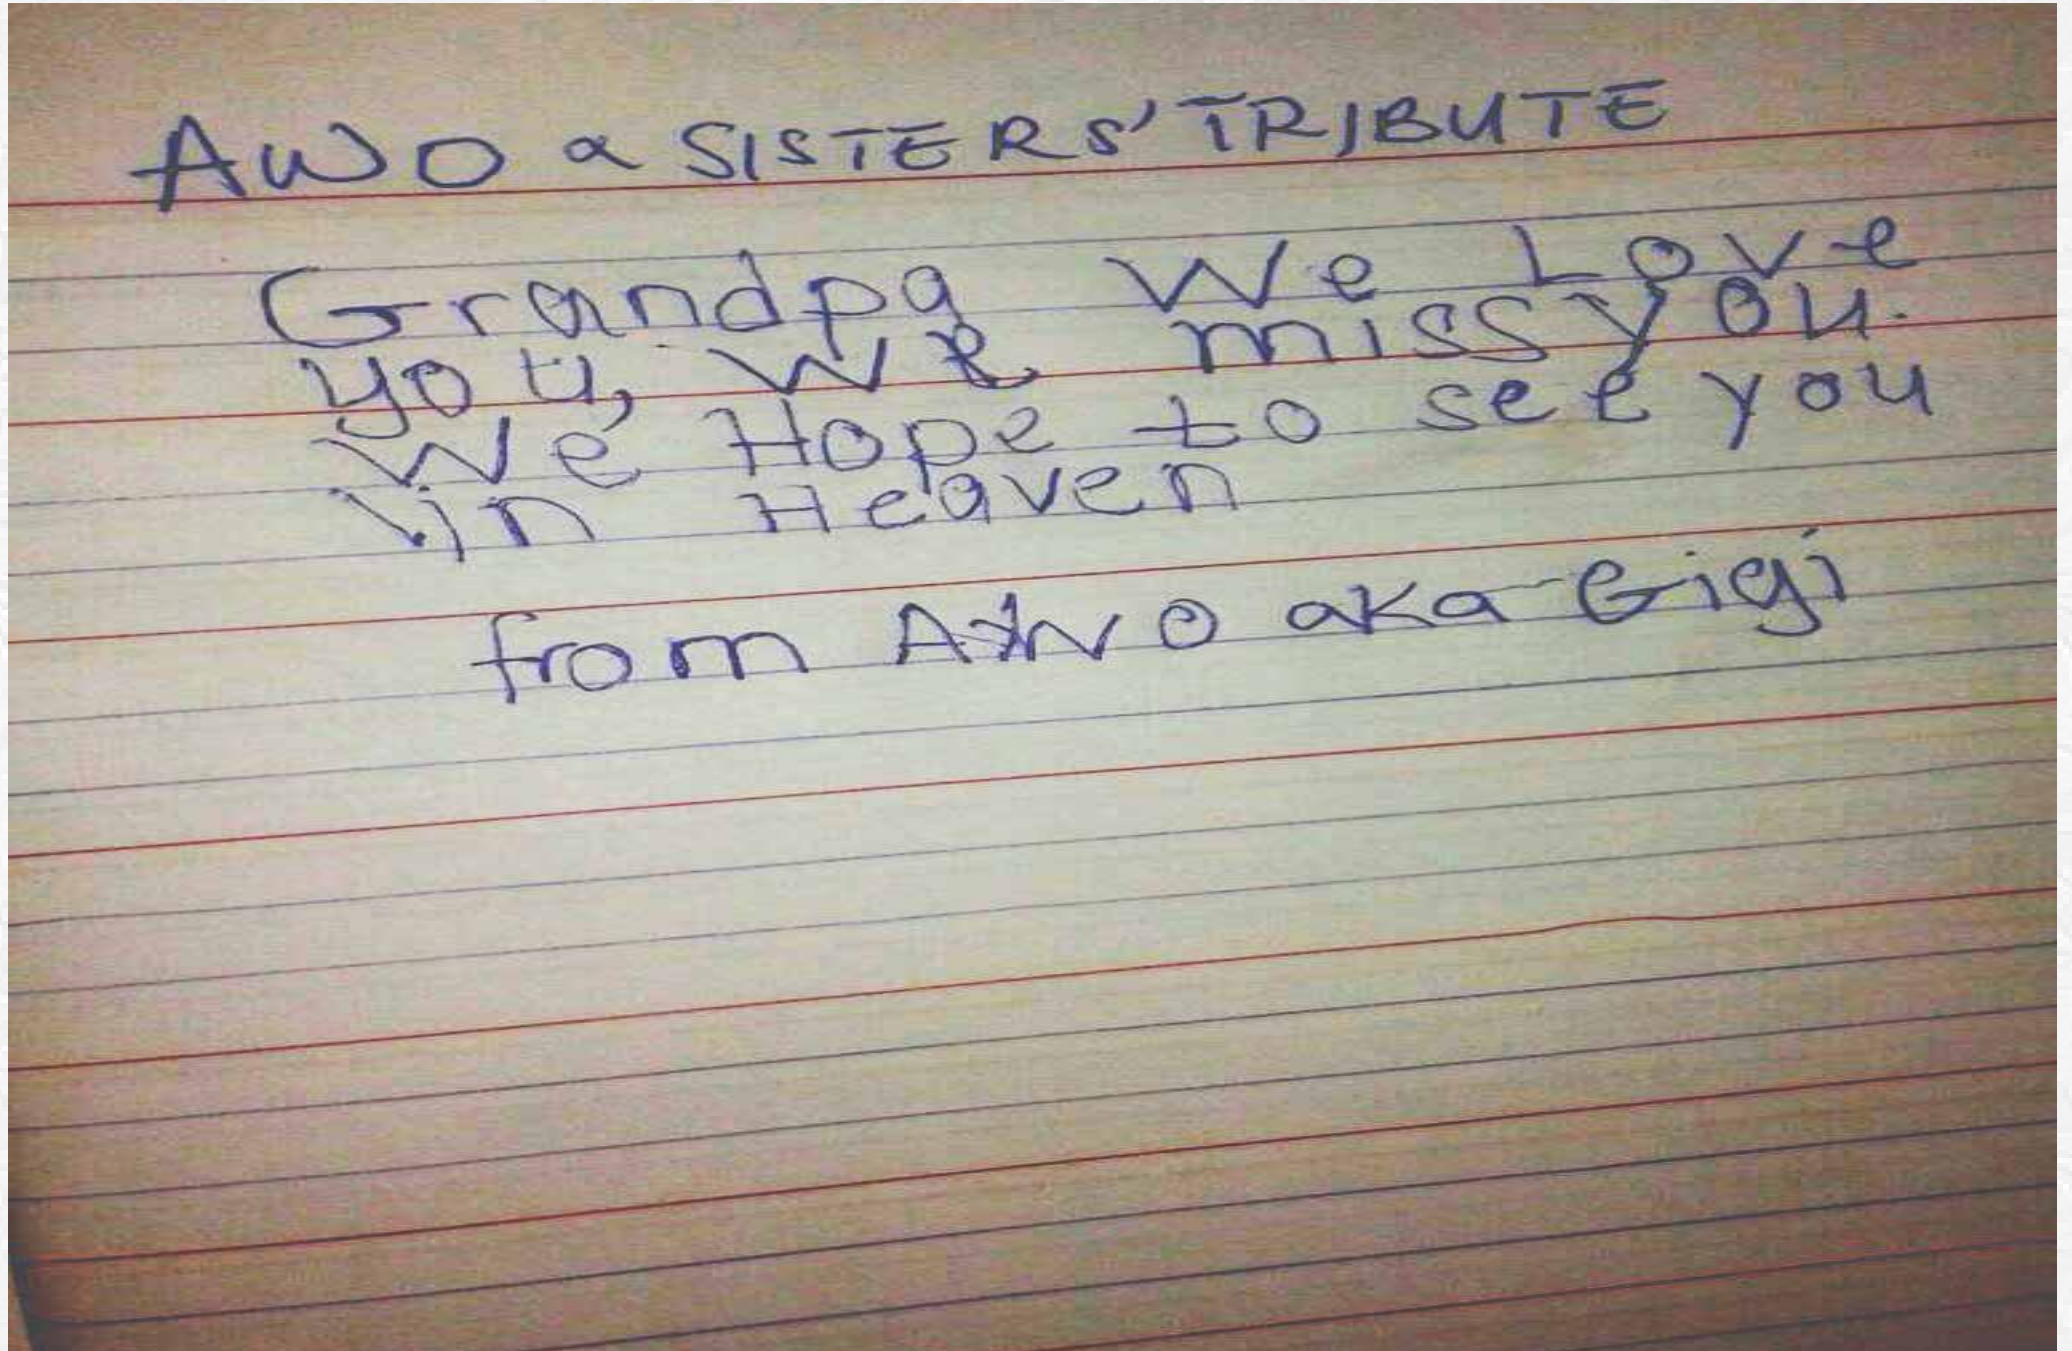

When you were sick you sought the face of the Lord and the Lord healed you, even when you were unable to walk till at last the Lord called you. We will remember you Daasebre Asare Baah as a mighty warrior, you took the people of Worawora back to their roots, to Kuntense. Ayekooo! May your soul rest in perfect peace.

TRIBUTE BY SON IN - LAW (ISAAC TOSU)

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith"
2 Tim 4:7 KJV

Rosemary called me around 11am on that fateful Tuesday, 11th August 2015 and sounded very worried, for a while, she could not speak but later said Nana had collapsed and he was hospitalized. I encouraged her by saying, Nana will be alright and the Lord in control. Throughout the day, I was hoping and praying that Nana will regain consciousness and so that we could visit him later in the day.

Little did we know that Nana had already departed to join his ancestors. Nana as I affectionately called him called us on 9th August 2015 to wish his granddaughter Fafali a happy birthday and requested that we bring her for him to bless her. We dragged out feet that day and decided we will see Nana the following Sunday. Unbeknownst to us Nana wanted to say good bye to us and bless his grandchildren.

Nana, we are still struggling to explain your sudden departure to your grandchildren. Awo and Fafali keep on asking us, 'when are we are going to North Kaneshie to see Grand Pa'. Each time they ask us this question, we are speechless.

Nana, I still remember the wise counsel you gave me on the day I got married to Rosemary, it has really shaped my thinking and I am eternally grateful. You openly shared the challenges you faced growing up and requested that I learn from them. What more, can I ask from my father in-law?

Nana, you're a giant in our hearts and you will be deeply missed.

May the good Lord grant you eternal rest until we meet again!

TRIBUTE BY DAUGHTER IN - LAW (THEODORA BAAH)

Although I have known Daasebre Asare Baah III for a short while starting from around the time when I became his daughter in-law three years ago, I still feel the pain of his loss because we grew close to each other in that short time.

He was instrumental in the organization of our wedding helping us in cash and in kind, his virtue of being very generous quickly struck me then. However later on when we used to visit him regularly he also showed me his other side of being a good father. He would also drop some heavy advice for me concerning my marriage, or education or other aspects of my life. He was the one person who I felt safe confiding in because of his experience and his influence in the life of my husband.

I have a few memories I would treasure forever. For instance when you became very emotional at our engagement because I was taking your son away. I also remember those few Christmases we shared with you when we exchanged gifts. You were always bringing us foodstuffs from your many travels.

Regrettably your desire to host me at Worawora during the annual festival never materialized. You were eager to show me off to the rest of your people at Worawora. I could tell that Worawora was so dear to your heart as was the welfare of your family.

Your demise is a big loss. I have really felt the absence since you left. I will make sure your grandchildren hear about how kind and gentle you were. May you rest peacefully in the bosom of the Lord.

TRIBUTE BY (1959 Year Group of PRESEC Old Boys Association)

By the time his life's journey ended on 11th August, 2015, we had known the personality to whom we bid final farewell today by three. First as Adu Baah, then Nyamekye Baah and later in life as Nana Asare Baah III.

Our association with Nana then known as Adu Baah dates back to January 1955 at the Presbyterian Boys Boarding Secondary School – PRESEC. The school was then situated at Odumase Krobo in the Eastern Region and about seventy (70) of us, then teenagers, had been offered admission to the Institution as RAWs to undergo a five (5) year course of study leading to the award of the then Cambridge Ordinary School Certificate.

We exited PRESEC in December 1959 having successfully sat the Examination for the award of the certificate, Nana then called Adu Baah, the name by which most of our class and school mates still remember him, was assigned to House four (4).

He insisted on being called Prince Yaw Baah. He was diligent in his studies, jovial and mixed well with all. He was an initiator of nicknames the delivery of which he made in his peculiar hilarious voice.

During our last year at PRESEC, he was made the C.B.O. (Chief Boarding Officer). The Prefect who supervised activities in the Dining Halls. We had two. After 1959 Nana, like some of our mates continued to further his education eventually entering the Jobs Market as a Legal Practitioner.

Separation from PRESEC did not dampen our spirits of togetherness which we had acquired at Odumase Krobo. Hence when the Umbrella Body – PRESEC ODUMASE LEGON OLD BOYS ASSOCIATION – was revived in the 1980's with the formation of various year Groups Nana Asare Baah became a key and active member of the 1959 year group. Initially, he was regular at meetings and attended activities organized by the Group.

He enlivened these meetings with his hilarious reminiscence of some of the escapades we engaged in as youngsters at PRESEC and rendition of the mannerisms of some of our masters.

Nana in the late 1900's arranged for the group's monthly meetings to be held at the Country Kitchen, Osu and he hosted our 1999 get-together at his Kokomlemle Residence. He subsequently planned to host more get-togethers but these plans never materialized. He also regularly invited us to his people's annual Akwantutenten Festival. Nana Asare Baah readily offered professional services free of charge to classmates who called on him.

We were aware that his health had been a bother for some time, but we did not expect his demise so soon.

Nana Asare Baah III we are happy to have been associated with you for sixty (60) of your eighty (80) years sojourn on earth.

When the roll is called at our next gathering you will be permanent absentee number thirty-three (33).

TRIBUTE BY LUCAS PRINCE AKOMPI

"For whether we live, we live unto the lord; and whether we die, we die unto the lord:

whether we live therefore,

or die, we are the lord's." - Romans 14:8

"Sorrow comes in great waves...but it rolls over us, and though it may almost smother us.

it passes and we remain." - Henry James

It has been said that best dads get promoted to grandpas. Grandfathers are also often the source of sage advice, a benefit of their many years of experience.

Grandfathers are good listeners, good storytellers and most importantly good friends. One thing is for sure, the love of a grandfather is a unique treasure that is never forgotten by their grandchildren and so I will never forget that love you showed me. You have been a source of great inspiration to me throughout my growing up.

Nana Asare-Baah III, was a humble man; he never liked to be the center of attention. In life and now in death, he wouldn't want us to focus on him. He wouldn't want us to focus on the sadness of his death, but instead focus on the happiness in our lives. He would want us to appreciate each other and our future.

My grandpa's generosity, work ethic, humility and selflessness are all qualities that I admire him for, and qualities I myself aspire to.

You thought me how to cook and today I can confidently say I am a good cook. I will never forget our special palm nut soup we prepared on that faithful day. "Super" that was always been your reaction anytime we finish cooking and you had to taste especially the stew.

I never got tied preparing your favourite Lipton tea with carnation milk served with ginger biscuits and I know that was what you first requested from angels when you got to heaven. You straightened my path, shifted my paradigm and gave me a reason to believe that hard work pays.

Today I can confidently say I am a leaving testimony to others.

“Jesus Christ of Nazareth” was always what you say to register your displeasure anytime I go wrong or make a mistake. I will never forget this in hurry.

The sweet and sour orange taste saga always make me smile anytime I remember and I know Rosemary will also not forget that incident. In fact you forced us to be expects in tasting of oranges.

Dada, as I affectionately call you, I will always miss you. But I have so many wonderful memories to hang on to. You were a role model, and a friend. Your guidance and love will carry me through to the end of my days. I love you Grandpa, until we meet again.

TRIBUTE BY STEPHEN AMPEDU YEBOAH

'.....For the Lord himself will descend from Heaven with a cry of command, with the voice of an archangel, and with the sound of the trumpet of God. And the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so we will always be with the Lord.

Therefore encourage one another with these words 1Thessalonians 4: 16-18. '

Where do I begin and where do I end? Your death was indeed a big blow. You were so full of life that fateful morning the 11th of August 2015 and then all of a sudden you were gone. I thank the Almighty for giving me an opportunity to work with you for the past 27 years. I feel honoured to be the last person with you before your call to glory.

You were stern, hardworking, unpredictable and unselfish.

You sacrificed so much for others; you did the best you could as a boss and a father. Moving on would not be easy, but I believe that we shall be able to do all things through Christ who strengthens us. I will certainly miss you, my boss and hero.

May your gentle soul rest in perfect peace.
